

Moomins in Library!

by Iida Tenolahti

(6.2.2014) On Thursday morning before entering the library, one of the girls from English nursery saw me and ran through the parking lot, shouting my name just to give me a hug! It felt so good. I am really going to miss the children in here!

So we had this event, Moomins in Library. We started with some conversation and info about what is going to happen today. I read some parts from Herra Huu (the Finnish book) and after adults tried to read it as well; I understood most of it :D We danced again Pää, olkapää, peppu-song ;)

Library ladies read two Moomin books for children; they were great! I drew a big Moomin for the children :) The children did some Moomin crafts for the exhibition that I'll arrange (hopefully with my big sister;) in Finland. The atmosphere was very nice and I think that the library itself as a place was great as well!
